TRACK MEN RECALL OLD TIME FAVORITES

By J. W. MARCHBANK

With racing over at Tanforan until the fall a little thought might well be given to the continuity of the game and the traditions that keep it high in public esteem generation after generation. In the lull that comes each afternoon prior to the beginning of the running of the races something came up in a group of "mutuel" men and others as to the antecedents of those well remembered gallopers of years ago, Riley and Modesty. It was significant in itself that the talk should be of horses and not of the often engrossing topics of possible winners and probable odds.

In the fanning bee it was suggested that there had been a mating of Riley, himself a Kentucky Derby winner, and an imported mare by the name of Helter Skelter. So there was. Somehow to another of the group came back the memory of the stallion Burgomaster; and no wonder, as Burgomaster was a son of Hurley Burley, which had been produced by the union of Riley and Helter Skelter.

Riley was given his name by Ed Corrigan in honor of his friend, Clint Riley, for many years editor of Racing Form in Chicago. Corrigan is recalled by old timers as one of the builders of the Tanforan plant in the nineties. That the stallion was a true son of the sterling Longfellow is attested by the opinion of all who witnessed his victories in the Derby at Churchill Downs, at that time at one mile and a half, instead of the shortened mile and a quarter, the Clark Handicap and other stakes.

The War Dance mare Modesty, which goes back in tail female to the same ancestor as Riley, a mare by imported Janus, was a grand performer and won the American Derby at Washington Park six years prior to the victory of Riley in Kentucky, and thirty-three other races. That a filly must be of superlative quality to beat the colts of her own age at level weights is demonstrated not only by the victory of Modesty in the Chicago feature, the only one of her sex in its many renewals, but also by Regret's conquest of quite capable ones in the Kentucky Derby.

It is a good thing to hark back to other days once in awhile if only to get a basis for comparison of the clever performers of half a century ago and the fleet ones now scintilating out on the tracks of the country. Added zest is given to breeding and racing when one thinks of all the care and time devoted to the upbuilding of the thoroughbred. The game has a background through the centuries that cannot be matched by any other sport.

New York as It Appears From Above Hell Gate

This new aerial view of New York shows the Hell Gate bridge in the foreground, linking Ward's island, on the right, with Astoria across the East river. In the rear of the Hell Gate bridge are seen the cables for the new Triboro bridge. Farther down the river are Welfare Island and the Queensborough bridge.

AUTO ACCIDENT CLAIMS ANOTHER HIGHWAY VICTIM

Killed At Intersection Of Roads By Car Driven By S. F. Woman

John McGregor, aged 50, said to be partner in a racing stable with horses quartered at Tanforan, was fatally injured early Sunday morning when struck by an automobile while walking along the 101 highway near Lipsic crossing at the intersection leading to the Buri-Buri ranch.

Miss Betty Kepner, 337 Clay street, driver of the automobile which struck McGregor, and her companion, Howard O'Neil, 751 Twelfth avenue, took McGregor to the Villa Sanitarium, where he succumbed to his injuries shortly after arrival.

McGregor, a former resident of Stockton, was part owner of the race horse Kislav.

Miss Kepner was arrested by a state traffic officer, but was released later on her own recognizance. She made a statement before the district attorney Monday morning of this week and was not held.

McGregor's remains were shipped to Medicine Lodge, Kansas City, Wednesday morning of this week from the mortuary establishment of W. C. Lasswell and Company for interment.

JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL GRADS ARE GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Fifty-Six Get "Sheepskins" In Exercises As Token Of Good Work

Sixty-six graduates received their diplomas at the Jefefrson Union High School commencement exercises on Tuesday evening of this week. The auditorium was filled to capacity, but was not uncomfortably crowded as in previous years. Invitations had been given out through the members of the graduating class, and limited to the seating capacity of the auditorium. The result was that the exercises were model in comfort and decorum.

As is the custom at Jefferson, the entire program consisted of numbers by members of the school, with the opening and closing prayers offered by local clergymen. Rev. James B. Doyle gave the invocation and Rev. J. M. Gill the benediction.

The stage was beautifully decorated with gladiolas and white lilies, under the supervision of Miss Effie Potter, teacher of art in the school.

Principal James Ferguson, in presenting the class, admonished the graduates regarding their responsibilities for the future.

"Up to the present time," he said, "your path has been lined on each side by hedgerows planted by parents and teachers. Tomorrow you enter the broad highway of life. There are

SPRING MEETING CLOSES AS PLANS FOR FALL MADE

Officials Will Go East To Enlist Entry Of Number Of Good Horses

With a successful 1935 spring meet of 24 days now in the record books at Tanforan, plans are being formulated for the fall session at this historic race course. J. W. Marchbank directing owner of Tanforan, anticipates an excellent fall meeting and has many plans in regard to next season.

Judge George W. Schilling, presiding steward at Tanforan and Judge Webb A. Everett, racing secretary and handicapper, will go East late in the summer in quest of horses. These two competent and popular officials will work together in obtaining high class thoroughbreds for the fall meeting.

Mr. Marchbank has turned over the blueprints of the stables at Tanforan to Judge Everett, who will have complete authority in allocating the stall space to horsemen for the fall meeting.

Horsemen have always liked to campaign at the Tanforan course and the many improvements made this season have won the track new admirers on all sides.

Mr. Marchbank, who in addition to his interests at Tanforan, is the master of Heather Farm at Walnut Creek, took occasion as the season ended to stress again the need of improving the breed of horses in California.

ASKS PROBE BY GRAND JURY OF WORK AT COLMA

Supervisor Al Witt Asserts County Engineer Scott Responsible For Loss Of Farm Crops

Investigation by the county grand jury of charges against County Engineer Carl Scott was demanded on Monday by Supervisor Albert Witt of Daly City. The representative from the northern section said neglect was apparent in the handling of the Colma drainage and other projects by the engineer's office.

Witt's plea did not convince two of his fellow members—Fred Beer of San Mateo and John Poole of Redwood City—of the necessity of reference of the matter to the inquisitorial body. Beer and Poole succeeded in putting through a motion that the claim of A. R. Moniz, Colma rancher, for $2000 for alleged ruining of crops when Colma Creek overflowed a newly constructed ditch, be sent to District Attorney Gilbert Ferrell for a ruling.

Witt declared the county engineer's department had not taken care of the storm waters after Colma Creek had been diverted, causing washing away of crops. The supervisor held that the Colma Creek project was a "folly" of former engineer James S. James.

The Daly City supervisor also charged alleged waste of funds in the rebuilding of the Granada and Moss Beach sewers so that funds were not sufficient to cover the Montara system as well.

He called on Giles B. Johnson of Montara to give a history of the sewer work done in Granada, Moss Beach and Montara. He said $15,135.43 was expected from SERA funds and that $6230 more would be required to complete the project.

He also charged that the plans and projects committee, an advisory body to the county relief committee, had defied the board's order to appear and explain its attitude on the Montara sewer project and as a result resignations should be asked for. The board took no action.

ORDINANCE FOR REVAMPING FIRE DEPARTMENT

Council Also Passes One To Regulate Businesses And Dances In Daly City

At the regular meeting of the Daly City Council on Monday of this week, a letter was read from Mayor H. H. Smith, appointing Councilman Henry Sundermann as acting mayor during the absence of Mayor Smith on an extended vacation in the East.

A resolution to ratify the appointment was unanimously approved.

A final report of the planning committee with reference to amendment of Section 2 of Ordinance No. 176, regarding rezoning of certain sections for business purposes, was read.

The report was adopted.

An ordinance covering this amendment was introduced and read first time.

On suggestion of a citizen of the section the matter of investigating rezoning of the area from School street to the southern boundary of the city was referred to the chairman of the ordinance committee.

A communication from the Peninsula Water Works Association invited members of the council to a meeting at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel on Wednesday evening.

The City of Santa Clara invited members of the council to join with them in a Fourth of July celebration in that city.

A resolution declaring that growing weeds are a nuisance and ordering their abatement was adopted.

An ordinance regarding regulation of businesses and dances in Daly City was adopted. The ordinance prescribes penalties for violation.

An ordinance creating a new fire department was read and adopted by a vote of three to one, Councilman Fahy voting in the negative. Same was ordered to print.

A letter from the mayor, describing the first leg of his vacation trip and postmarked at Chicago was read by Councilman Sundermann.

A reception followed the ceremony, at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by relatives and friends.

The participants both attended the grammar schools of this community and are graduates of the Jefferson Union High School.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Davis of Citrus avenue.

The newly weds departed on the steamer Yale on a honeymoon to be spent in southern California. While in the south they plan an extensive visit to the San Diego fair.

Upon their return they will reside at 1135 Brunswick street. Both have a host of friends who wish them much happiness in their wedded life.

OPTIMISM HIGH FOR SUCCESS IN NORTH

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

In a bit of controversy as to the wisdom of the federal government in colonizing the Matanuska Valley in Alaska a good deal of valuable information, first hand in character, is coming out. Men with knowledge of the country are speaking out, and as a result of looking over all the pros and cons one must agree with experts who declare the colonists have a wonderful opportunity of achieving success.

In answer to passimistic utterances in a Seattle newspaper, a former Alaskan of long experience states that the valley is particularly adapted to diversified farming and dairying. He points out that a dark, rich, loam soil covers the entire valley and that wheat, oats, rye, barley and root crops can be grown. In edible vegetables the valley grows native celery, sage, onions and rhubarb.

As to the climate. It is an accepted fact that the summer temperature seldom goes below 50 degrees. The average winter temperature is about 10 or 15 degrees below zero. It is said the snowfall is not very heavy and that there is plenty of rain.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration estimates the cost of the Matanuska Valley Colonization Plan at $981,907. N. Lester Troast, supervising architect for the plan, spoke to a reporter of The Alaska Weekly as follows, in regard to arrangements:

"This is not just an ordinary job for an architect. Usually, when I have drawn a set of plans, and they have been accepted, about all I have to do is to look after the job of construction, keep an eye on the general work until the job is completed, and then, after an inspection, accept the job, but this one is different.

"We are going into a new country—what you might call a virgin country—and build for an entire community.

"We have to build homes and barns, together with outhouses and chicken coops. We shall build school houses, a community center, cannary, creamery; in fact, everything that a growing community is liable to need in the way of buildings.

"We are purchasing everything possible in Alaska, as this is an Alaskan proposition and Alaska is entitled to all possible trade that may be derived from it.

"This is a larger project than many people imagine—we are building for the future and we are planning on many years ahead of us. The trading post will be strictly Alaskan. It will be provided with a bodern heating plant, but to all intents and purposes it will be distinctly Alaskan—just like the trading posts you see along the Yukon."

Sidney Norman tells of the return to Vancouver of Captain Evans-Atkinson from what may prove to be an important new gold district in the mountains of Moha, north of Lillooet, in British Columbia. The captain has a crew of men engaged erecting a base camp and making trail for his "Air-View Gold Discovery."

The zone upon which the locations have been made was discovered as the result of an aerial reconnaissance. Evans-Atkinson followed up air indications by prospecting on foot. A quartz vein has been located with width said to be as much as 100 feet.

Writing in the Vancouver Sun, Norman says the topography of the section is extremely rugged and declares the airplane is not only the quickest but almost the only method of prospecting the area.

If a productive camp should be proved in the vicinity of the new Air-View discovery, it will be the first in British Columbia to be spied out and located by airplane observation.

no hedgerows marking the road, but in place of them are open ditches, sometimes ravines. Drive cautiously, remembering the words of counsel given by your parents and teachers.

"Many of you leave this school to enter the school of experience. There you find no free tuition. Every lesson you learn by mistakes made will be costly. Some mistakes are so costly that they would put on your soul and your body a mortgage for life. Never be too wise to listen to the counsel of friends."

Mr. Ferguson warned the graduates against those who seek to belittle our republican form of government.

"When you meet such people, recall in your own minds the price at which our government was bought, the sufferings of Washington's army at Valley Forge, the cost of the conflict for the preservation of the Union, and the sacrifices made by Americans in the World War that democracy might have a chance to survive. Ours is a government of the people, for the people, and by the people, with all which that implies."

Mr. Ferguson then led the class in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, which was taken in a most impressive manner.

Dr. Callsen, president of the Board of High School Trustees, and Mrs. Stella Jensen, clerk of the board, in presenting the diplomas to the class, each made appropriate remarks to the graduates and their parents and friends. They spoke of the splendid work done by the students and complimented the members of the faculty on their spirit of co-operation and efficiency.

Following is the program in full, with the names of the graduates:

HE HIT THE ROAD TO WRITE A NOVEL

Hoffmann Is First to Spin Yarn Around Share-Expense Tour.

Thousands more every year are traveling across the country on share-the-expense automobile tours. Little bands of people who never saw one another before are thrown into the most intimate company, trusting their lives and property to a man they never knew before starting their journeys.

RICHARD HOFFMANN

Richard Hoffmann was the first to see the splendid plot possibilities in this new mode of travel. To gather material he embarked in one of these cars with very little money, but an observing eye. The result was "Watch the Curves," as hilarious and exciting a tale as you'll ever read, which appears serially in the columns of this newspaper. It strikes a new high in American fiction.

Hoffmann, also author of "The Prodigal Duke," was born in New York in 1901, and educated at Lawrenceville, Williams and Oxford. A yachting amateur, he has sailed in the Queen's Cup race to Spain and the Fastnet races in England. He has traveled widely through Europe. He writes with a fresh, youthful pen, as you will see in "Watch the Curves."

Follow every installment.

PIONEER RESIDENT SUCCUMBS SUNDAY

Mrs. Agnes Geiger, Hillcrest Drive, passed away last Sunday, following a long illness.

Mrs. Geiger, a resident of Daly City for the past 28 years, was the widow of the late John Geiger.

A daughter, Mrs. Rose Foster, survives.

The funeral services were conducted from the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell and Company at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon of this week. Interment was in Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

Presbyterian Church Service

During the absence of the pastor for the next two weeks the following services have been arranged in Grace Presbyterian Church:

Rev. John W. Falconer will preach on June 2 at 11 a. m., and also in the evening at 7:45. Rev. Morris Zutrau will preach on June 9 at the 11 a. m. service, when he will give a practical demonstration of the Jewish Passover. Rev. Zutrau, being a converted Jew, will make this service exceptionally instructive as a Bible Exposition Service. Mrs. Kate Macky will speak at the Young Peoples meeting at 7 p. m. on June 2 and 9. Prayer meeting at 7:45 Wednesday evening with Henry M. Hamilton in charge.

"THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING" IS SENSATION

It is our guess that "The Whole Town's Talking," which starts at the Daly City Theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, June 2, 3 and 4, is at once a hit. Unsurpassed in entertainment value and boasting one of the outstanding performances of the year in the serio-comic characterization by Edward G. Robinson, it should be a winner.

The story concerns the hilarious adventures of an inoffensive, frightened little clerk who is mistaken for the country's most sought after gangster. He is given a "passport" by the authorities to identify him at all times. His gangster counterpart, however, frightens the clerk into hiding nights while he uses the "passport" to carry on his criminal activities. Jones, the clerk, finally develops an under nourished courage when his dream love, the lovely Jean Arthur, is kidnapped by the gangster. In a startling and sensational climax he captures the criminal, wins the girl and discovers to his own satisfaction that he is a man's man.

On the same program will be seen George Burns and Gracie Allan in "Love in Bloom."

HONOR MATRON AT SURPRISE PARTY

Mrs. A. Lugliani of San Diego avenue was delightfully surprised, Thursday evening of last week, when a group of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. J. Lengenfelder of San Diego avenue and tendered her a stork shower. Mrs. Lengenfelder was assisted by Mrs. A. Seiler.

Mrs. Lugliani was the recipient of many gifts.

A pleasant evening was spent playing cards and dancing, after which a buffet supper was served, the table being prettily decorated in spring flowers.

The guests included Mesdames Berdie Carboni, Mary Guisto, Ellen Martin, Gertrude Gehringer, Madeline Ferro, Rose Lenarduzzi, Jennie Friscia, Victoria Lindsay, Lavone Medill, Millie Harmon, Fernanda Durso, Martha Dottenweich, Georgie Parata, Myrtle Porter, Miria McDonald, Carmela Boitano, Oliva Fontana, Mildred Seiler, Claire Seiler and Emily Twesten and Misses Gloria Swearingen, Flora Lugliani, Ida Lugliani, Mildred Johnston, Elsie Munz and Anne Klingler.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES IN PARK

Daly City yesterday experienced a thrill at hearing the strains of martial music which wafted on the breeze.

Early in the afternoon a parade headed by au automobile containing city officials started down Mission street from the "Top of the Hill" and proceeded to the Daly City Park on Packview avenue, where appropriate Memorial Day exercises were held

The line of march was composed of an auto with city officials, followed by the Daly City Band in their resplendant uniforms, units of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion and their Women's Auxiliaries, the Eagles Drum Corps, a drum corps from one of the San Francisco posts and numerous automobiles, including one rickety old "hack" of exceeding early vintage, which attracted much attention.

HONORS MOTHER WITH LUNCHEON

On Friday of last week Mrs. Ernest Romer entertained at luncheon a number of friends, honoring the mother of her husband.

The guests came bearing gifts and with sincere best wishes to one they delighted to honor, who recently became the bride of Charles Plambeck. They were led to the table by Mrs. Plambeck, who proudly carried a quaint wedding bouquet of small flowers in a lace holder, presented by Mrs. Hodeck. The women were profuse in their praise of the bride's table, which was rare in its lovliness, the colors being pink and white with a huge wedding cake under gayly swinging bells.

Delicious refreshments were served by the charming hostess, after which all enjoyed the surprise and appreciation of Mrs. Plambeck as the packages were opened.

The happy time, long to be remembered, was enjoyed by Mesdames J. Hansen, C. Rohde, L. Newby, F. Nespoli, C. Montrelle, Julia Romer and Anna Plambeck of San Francisco and Mesdames J. Campbell, N. Peterson, J. Hodeck, M. White, E. Twesten, F. Sampson of Daly City, and most important, little Roberta Romer, granddaughter of Mrs. Plambeck.

—24—

'You are so kind, Doctor Burt," she said.

He resumed his passive stroking of her forehead and cheeks; in a low, monotonous tone he commanded her to answer all his questions. Then suddenly:

"Have you thought of your daughter, Penelope, of late?"

Grimace of distress flitted across the beautiful face. "No distress or bad luck will attend the thinking while you are with me, understand? I command you to think about her—to remember her and to answer truthfully all my questions regarding her."

"Yes, Doctor."

"Why did you and Mr. Gatlin adopt her?"

"He wanted a baby and I couldn't give him one."

"Could you, if you had cared to?"

"Yes, Doctor." Her tone was very peevish.

"How old was she when you adopted her?"

"About a month."

"Where did you find her?"

"In the Infants' Shelter in San Francisco."

"Did you know who her parents were before you had decided to adopt her?"

"Yes, Doctor. A Captain and Mrs. Robert E. Elliott."

"Why did the Elliots abandon their baby?"

"The captain was killed by the Moros and his wife died in this city in childbirth."

"Do you remember what branch of the service the captain was in?"

"He was a captain of cavalry."

"When you and Mr. Gatlin adopted Penelope, did you have any written record of her parentage?"

"We had a letter from the matron at the Infants' Shelter. And we had a letter from the doctor who attended Mrs. Elliot at St. Dunstan's hospital, and some letters from old neighbors of the Elliots."

"Why did you get the letters from the old neighbors?"

"Theodore was concerned about the baby's ancestry."

"And was it the best?"

"I do not know. It satisfied Mr. Gatlin."

"What has become of all the records pertaining to Penelope?"

"I burned them."

"Why?"

"To keep Penelope from getting them."

"Then she wanted them, did she not?"

"Yes, Doctor. She demanded them."

"When was this?"

"On her eighteenth birthday."

"How did it happen that she waited until her eighteenth birthday before demanding them?"

"Up until then she thought she was our own flesh and blood."

"Ah! Why did you burn these records rather than give them to Penelope?"

"I hate her."

"When you refused to give them to her, what happened?"

"She cried and laughed and screamed and attacked me. She said she hated me. Finally she fainted, and I had the maid put her to bed and lock her in her room."

"Did you give Penelope any information at all, at any time, regarding her parentage?"

There was a slight hesitation. "I lied to her. I wanted to hurt her because she wouldn't recognize my moral right to half of Theodore's estate. So I told her she had negro blood in her veins."

"What made you invent such a horrible tale?"

"Penelope is a decided brunette. I thought even if she did not believe me, my statement would create in her mind a doubt and a fear that would drive her crazy."

"What happened after that, Mrs. Merton?"

"In the morning she was gone."

"How did she go?"

"She made a rope of sheets and blankets."

"Have you seen her since?"

"No."

"Is she dead?"

"I do not know. I hope so."

Stephen turned to Dan. "Any questions?"

McNamara shook his head owlishly. "I can revive most of the record—perhaps all of it. The captain's record is in the army files; when he married, a notice of it appeared in the Army and Navy Journal; with that and what I can get out of the officers who soldiered with the captain, I'll get a pretty complete picture."

Stephen resumed his cross examination.

"Did you ever beat Penelope? Did you ever pinch her and slap her and lock her up?"

"Yes, Doctor."

"Wake the fiend up and send her home," McNamara roared.

"I will—as soon as I look up her memory of Penelope," Stephen replied. He impressed upon her the fact that she was not ill at all. He commanded her very earnestly to forget that she had ever heard of him.

Then he awakened her, as McNamara departed, gave her a long look, felt her pulse, told her she was much improved and handed her some soda-mint tablets. She departed in a somewhat happier mood.

"Well," McNamara demanded, when he and Stephen found themselves alone again, "what do you think of that one for a hell-cat?"

"I do not think, Dan. We merely accept such people as we accept sunlight and rainfall."

"Do you think you'll see any more of this woman, Stephen?"

"I hope not. I hope the hypnotic suggestion I gave her is strong enough to overcome her acquired instinct for illness."

"Were the things she told you illuminating?"

"Very. I suspected most of them and she confirmed my suspicion. We know now that Penelope is of sound ancestry. Her father was not a neurotic. If he hadn't been a normal, gallant fellow and physically fit he would never have become a captain of cavalry. He was killed in action. But we have arrived at a starting point, Dan—the reason for the mental shock that gave Penelope a dissociated personality."

"I didn't get that—at least not quite, Stephen."

"For some reason best known to themselves, the Gatlins kept from Penelope the fact that she was not their own flesh and blood. However, while we have definitely established the date of the mental shock and the character of the shock, we have also established the causative factors leading up to the shock. Penelope had a most unhappy childhood. From earliest childhood she was the victim of bitter, rebellious thoughts. Then that baseball wrecked her nose. This was a mental and physical shock. The separation and divorce of the Gatlins was another terrible shock, because she lost Gatlin and there was nobody to protect her. And Gatlin's death was a severe shock. Then, as she emerged from childhood into maidenhood, the knowledge that her nose made her hideous naturally became an obsession with her.

"Now, Dan, by this time there was no further necessity for concealing the facts of the child's birth. Gatlin, dead, had left his entire estate in trust to Penelope, and on her eighteenth birthday she was free to do as she pleased. She could leave her hell-cat of an adopted mother now. She carried her own check book. The knowledge that she was not flesh and blood of the beloved Gatlin came as a terrible shock and with it, of course, came other terrifying speculations."

"More piling on of the inferiority complex," McNamara interrupted. "And she cracked under it. Then she made up her mind to forget Mrs. Gatlin—and she did."

"A clear case of auto-hypnosis Dan. Now you've got to run down the record of our Penelope and that of her parents. She must have it and it must be proof of the most convincing character, because such proof is necessary if we are to restore to her her mental tranquility."

"Well" said Dan, "I'll be back presently with the girl's record, and then—"

"Out of the darkness into the sunlight, Mac."

"Well, the next one I find in the darkness will stay there," the chief growled.

The absence of the capable Lanny was a constant reminder to Dr. Stephen Burt of his sole experiment to date in a case of dual personality. He yearned with an alert scientific yearning to get to work on Penelope Gatlin, and when Dan McNamara appeared at the office one day he saw by the satisfied smirk on the McNamara countenance that all had gone well.

"Let me see the documents," Stephen demanded.

McNamara handed over the pile of papers.

"Well, you've done your full duty and have kept the police of various cities busy for a few days," said Stephen. "What do you hear from Lanny?"

"She'll be home next week. The skin graft on the girl's nose was a complete success."

"And how does the girl feel about the situation now?"

"She's crazy about her new nose and spends hours examining it in a hand mirror."

Stephen smiled. "Naturally, she would."

"Lanny says the girl's been her real self more than half the time since that first look."

"She would be. And now I'm going to add to her happiness by sending her this record, which I shall supplement with a report of my own on her case. She'll study it, and in this convincing proof that she is not what Mrs. Merton told her she was, she'll probably get well. These cases are simple, Dan. All you have to do is to discover the cause and remove it. Nature does the rest. She will have no more rebellious thoughts, because the despot can do her no further harm. Her black moods of depression will not come again; she is organically and mentally sound, the product of a sound ancestry on both sides of her family."

"But she knows she was an inmate of San Quentin. She'll remember she was a thief."

"She will, of course, feel great shame when fully restored to her normal personality. In her other personality, with her acquired instincts of morality and convention smothered in her subconscious mind, she had, of course, no sense of remorse or shame. I think that when I have explained this to her she will understand just what her mental condition was. And her fear that the world will discover her sorry record will, I feel certain, be alleviated by her knowledge that it would be impossible for anybody who knew her as saddle-nosed Nance Belden to recognize her as good-looking Penelope Gatlin."

"All I've got to say, young fella m'lad," the admiring McNamara declared, "is that you're one h—l of a smart man!"

Some two weeks later, Lanny walked in on Stephen. "Well," he declared acidly, "you've certainly taken your time about getting back on the job. You're looking mighty particular, Lanny. Happy?"

"Stevie, dear, I never knew there was such complete happiness in the world."

"Where's Penelope?"

"She's gone back to Paris—on a new passport."

"Well, well, well," Stephen chided her, "tell me things."

"Stevie, she's as lovely as a May morning."

"And the operation?"

"A phenomenal success. Of course," Lanny added, "she could never stand a sock on the nose."

"Just what is she going to do in Paris?"

"Close out her apartment and dismiss her servants."

"And coming back to San Francisco?"

Lanny nodded. "How do you stand Miss Ordway as your office nurse, Stephen?"

"Rather well, I'm sorry to say. She's very competent and much more tactful than you."

"And do you want me back, darling?" she queried.

"There you go, fishing for a compliment. Of course I do, but—it isn't necessary. You could come in once a week—"

"Not for a great many weeks, Stevie."

He glanced up at her sharply. "How come, Lanny?"

Lanny's face was the color of an old rose. "I'm going to have a baby," she whispered.

And then Stephen Burt stood up and took dear old Lanny in his strong young arms and hugged her. At last she was going to have her little slice of life!

"Of course," Lanny said presently, "you'll be the baby's god-father?"

He nodded. "Of course."

Three months passed—to Stephen Burt remarkable by reason of the fact that Mrs. Rudolph Merton did not call upon him. At last, to satisfy his curiosity, he telephoned Rudolph Merton to ask him how his wife was.

"I don't know," Merton replied complacently. "She's gone."

"Dead?"

"No such luck. She's gone to Southern California to join a new religious sect. A colony on the fringe of the San Bernardino desert with a prophet in command."

"And what are you doing about it, Mr. Merton?" Stephen asked.

"I'm subsidizing the prophet so he'll stay in business ten months longer. Mrs. Merton has deserted me, thank

"Spends Hours Examining It in a Hand Mirror."

God, but she has to be away a year before I can secure a divorce on the grounds of desertion. The prophet comes high, but I can afford to pay for my fancies."

"I gather from your manner that you're not broken hearted."

"Such sorrow as I feel now would be delirious delight compared with what I'd feel if she decided to come back to me."

"I congratulate you, Mr. Merton. Good-by and good luck to you. You deserve it."

TO BE CONTINUED.

John Bunyan's Flute

While John Bunyan, who wrote Pilgrims Progress, was in prison his jailers heard music coming from his cell. They decided to take away his instrument, but the music ceased as they drew near the cell, and they could find nothing to show how the music was made. From time to time the music sounded, but only Bunyan and his book were found. What had happened was that Bunyan had made a flute from a loose rail of his stool, and on hearing the goaler's step he would slip it back into its place and pore over his book.

COOLIDGE SHOWN AS SHREWD, BUT KINDLY HEARTED

A Calvin Coolidge who sold his cast-off clothing to a second-hand man, who chased a bootlegger out of his office, and who let a window sill burn in his house to warn his boys to be careful with candles, is revealed in an installment of Grace Coolidge's, "The Real Calvin Coolidge," in Goodhousekeeping Magazine.

John Coolidge confesses his indignation at finding a newspaper photograph of his father in shirt sleeves, with saw in hand, pretending to build a toy motor car.

"Father," John says, "was running for office, as was his custom in the fall of the year. A cameraman had induced the pose, but it was my car. I could scarcely believe my eyes."

George A. Dragon, Northampton barber, unwittingly gets back at John for telling tales on his father.

"One time," Dragon contributes, "I asked about his sons, who were in school at Mercersburg.

"'I guess they must be all right, Mr. Coolidge replied, "they're always wanting something.'"

Ralph W. Hemenway, Coolidge's law-partner in Northampton for 18 years, who has never before given an interview or written about him, recalls that he once received the following note from President Coolidge from the White House:

"My Dear Mr. Hemenway:

"You have at Hampton safety deposit 2 Lib Bonds $50 each. See if any are due Sept. 15 current and if so have Tr. Co. collect them and credit my acct.

"Yours,

"Calvin Coolidge."

The interest due was $2.12.

Hemenway recalls another occasion, however, that brings out the late President's kind-heartedness and liberality. When Hemenway was in need of funds owing to the closing of a local bank Coolidge gave him a check for $5,000 and offered as much more as he might need.

German Umbrella Slump

Because one cannot carry an umbrella when wearing a uniform and maintain one's dignity, the rain shields have gone out of style in Germany. As a result 150,000 people in the umbrella industry have been thrown out of work, and manufacturers are seeking ways and means to bring the umbrella into its own again.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Some Little Known Matters That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: In what ways are bats like and unlike birds?

Answer: Like birds their blood is very hot, but a bird will die if it cannot keep warm. The bat, however, goes to sleep in winter. Its sleep is so deathlike that you would think a bat in his winter sleep was dead. It almost ceases to breathe and its body, so warm in summer, is in winter almost cold.

Question: What two creatures have much to plow the world's soil?

Answer: The worm and the mole. The latter is "a superb tunneler, a master engineer who constructs beautiful underground galleries leading to a marvelous hall or fortress."

Question: What is the difference between whole wheat and white bread?

Answer: The wheat grain has five separate coverings or skins and a germ. When these skins are left in and ground up together with the germ we have whole wheat flour, which contains the whole food value of the wheat. When the grain coverings are removed at the mill and only the germ ground we have white flour.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"When the wicked spring as the grass, and when all the workers of iniquity do flourish; it is that they shall be destroyed for ever." These words from Psalms comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, June 2, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "It shall even be as when an hungry man dreameth, and, behold, he eateth; but he awaketh, and his soul is empty: or as when a thirsty man dreameth, and, behold, he drinketh; but he awaketh, and ,behold, he is faint, and his soul hath appetite: so shall the multitude of all the nations be, that fight against mount Zion" (Isaiah 29:8).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "The truths of immortal Mind sustain man, and they annihilate the fables of mortal mind, whose flimsy and gaudy pretensions, like silly moths, singe their own wings and fall into dust" (p. 103).

CHRONOLOGY OF MONTH OF JUNE

(By Maude Larue Ives)

June, the sixth month of the year, has always been the favorite with poets. "The leafy month of June," one of them calls it, and rightly, for during its long days the trees and shrubs are at their freshest and best, and the flowers are most plentiful and richest in color. Especially, it is the month of roses.

No less truly is June the month of brides. This is no modern idea, but dates back to early Roman days. May was a particularly unlucky month for weddings, the ancients believed; but June, especially that part when the moon was at the full, was better than any other month. And all through the middle ages this superstition prevailed. The beauty of the month, and the luxuriance of its flowers, do, indeed, fit it well for all festivities, as does the fact that in most localities June has as many days of sunshine as any in the year.

It was the Romans who named June, which with them was the fourth month of the year. Some authorities believe that its name was derived from that of Juno; and that seems quite reasonable, for the great queen of the gods was the patron deity of marriage. In the time of Romulus the month had thirty days. Later it lost four of these, then regained three; so, when Julius Caesar began his reform of the calendar, it had but twenty-nine. He added the extra day, and ever since June has had thirty days.

June is a busy month in nature. "Fruits that shall swell in sunny June," wrote Bryant; when June comes the blossoms of the fruit trees have had their day, and the tiny green fruit is beginning to appear. The bees, too, are busy, carrying home honey and helping to fertilize the flowers, although this latter they are not aware of.

An old rhyme says "a swarm of bees in June is worth a silver spoon." Butterflies hover over the roadside flowers, and the mother birds brood over their eggs while their mates sing to them and bring them food.

June is not so much a time of transition as is May, for summer has really come; but it is a season of undiminished activity, when the "letting down and the drying up" which come in the hotter months of July and August have not yet begun. No month has more to interest the children or to draw them out of doors. The study of the bee and the butterfly, of many of the sweetest flowers, and of certain phases of the "home life" of the birds may well be undertaken at this time.

And every time a June day dies
We sigh, "Comes ever such a day again?"

WEEKLY BULLETIN

By Chief A. P. Chesney

Fire Department inspections of buildings should be repeated at frequent intervals if the purpose of fire prevention is to be followed up.

In paid fire departments the firemen make these inspections often and regularly and in some departments they have regular fire prevention bureaus and men are detailed to that work exclusively.

In the volunteer or partly paid department it is asking a great deal of the men to spend their own time on this work, but I am proud to state that any time the members of the local department are asked to spend a few hours on this detail they willingly respond.

At each building or plant visited the firemen doing the inspecting should consult with the owner, explaining that it is much more to the owner's benefit than to the department.

The owner should have his attention called to the most abused violations of fire protection, which include accumulation of combustible rubbish, waste material, oily rags, heating appliances storage of inflammable liquids, also blocking of doors with furniture or goods in a store.

Water Pump Speeds

Everything about the modern car is fast, as it necessarily must be if the vehicle is to be able to sustain the top speeds of which it is capable.

In this connection, have a look at the speed of the water pump on one of the new models. At fifty miles an hour, the pump drives twenty-seven gallons of water per minute through the cooling system. It gives the observant owner an inkling of the importance of keeping the pump in good condition.

Oil Fouls Plugs

An over supply of oil in the crankcase will cause the spark plugs to foul.

Fouled spark plugs will cause the motor to misfire.

HOME TOWN TEAM TAKES ANOTHER

Sullivan Toys With Rivals, Who Make Five Hits But Cannot Score

The local fans cheered the great victory of Matty Sullivan, local pitching ace, when he again showed his superiotity on Sunday afternoon at Jefferson High diamond by setting down the strong Half Moon Bay aggregation with five scattered hits and shut them out, 7 to 0.

The home club lads connected for fifteen bingles off Main and Sylvestri, among them being two triples and three doubles. Sullivan, local pitcher, hit for a double and a single, besides scoring three of his team's runs. The play by play report of the game will show the high caliber of baseball the local boys are playing, and the home team should receive the whole hearted support of all citizens for the able manner in which they furnish enjoyment to the lovers of the great national pastime.

Learn to be a home town booster at all times!

Picturesque for Afternoon Wear

PATTERN 9311

A little bit demure, a little bit picturesque, and a very pleasing fashion is this afternoon dress. The wide drop-shoulder yoke continues in a panel to the hem—and gives youth in doing so. The soft gathers and the tiny tucks at the waist add to the feminine, wearable quality of this gown which will grace all afternoon occasions. For wear right now it is new and right—make it in one of the melodious, color-harmony prints that will enhance your own natural coloring—when coatless days arrive choose a cape-line or bonnet brim hat—stunning!

Pattern 9311 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards 39 inch fabric.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Address your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York.

HOLY FACES ON POSTAGE STAMPS

Issues Have Given Rise to Much Comment.

Religion has become an important factor in the designs of postage stamps. Characters from both the Old and New Testament, their deeds and deaths, have been depicted on the colorful labels that prepay mail to points far distant from the land where the godly men once gave counsel.

Jesus Christ was first shown on a stamp in 1895 when Portugal and its colonies observed the Seventh century of the birth of St. Anthony of Padua. On it is shown the vision of the saint when he beholds the Infant Christ in the heavens. The reverse side of the issue reveals a printed prayer of the "Blessed Tongue."

The most outstanding stampic portrayal of Jesus Christ presents him with his disciples. The stamp first appeared in Italy in 1923 in commemoration of the tercentenary of the death of Pope Gregory XV.

From all sides praise and criticism were heaped upon the heads of the Italian postal system. Many persons felt that the cancellation of these stamps was akin to blasphemy as the holy image would be marred. To counteract this feeling post office authorities were ordered to cancel only the outer edge of the stamps, thus preventing mutilation of the portraits.

A large group, more liberal in thought, praised the new stamps, remarking that such an effort was valuable missionary work. As a result of the favorable comment, many people purchased sets of the stamps and framed them. Only a few were actually used and Italy, sensing the popularity of stamps featuring members of the church, went on to print new stamps commemorating religious events.

In Palestine, home of the three leading religions of the world, postage stamps depict the Tomb of Rachel, the Mosque of Omar and the Sea of Galilee, important factors in the spiritual laws of the present-day world.

SEEMED APPROPRIATE

SPORTSMEN PICNIC AT MARTIN'S BEACH

The picnic of the Associated Sportsmen of California, at Martin's Beach last Sunday, attracted clubs from all over the bay area.

Primo Livenais, as usual, dominated the casters, as did Mrs. Rose Stagnaro in the same event for women.

Several tons of smelt were landed and cooked for the hungry horde.

RIGHT OF WAY RULES SAFETY EFFORT TOPIC

Pointing out that failure to yield the right of way as required by law is a frequent cause of traffic accidents, the Public Safety Department of the California State Automobile Association is conducting a series of educational efforts during May on that group of safe driving rules. In a statement announcing the efforts the motorists organization summarizes right of way rules in the California Vehicle Act as follows:

When crossing streets, right of way must be yielded to any car already in the intersection. The driver on the right has the right of way only when two cars enter an intersection at the same time.

When making left turns, the driver must give a hand signal continuously for the last fifty feet before turning. If approaching car sare far enough away to avoid danger of collision, the driver may then turn and have the legal right of way. If approaching cars are too close, however, he must yield the right of way to oncoming vehicles. Having so yielded he may then proceed to turn and subsequent approaching traffic must yield to him.

When entering an arterial or through highway the driver must first stop, then proceed, as in the case of the left turn, only when approaching cars are far enough away to avoid danger of collision. But after having yielded to immediately approaching traffic, the entering driver has the right of way. Cars in any intersection have the right of way over approaching cars.

Drivers entering public highways from private roads or driveways have no right of way, but must wait until they can proceed safely.

Drivers must pull over to the right as far as possible and stop upon hearing the siren of a police car, ambulance, or fire apparatus. Right of way is yielded to emergency vehicles until safely past traffic.

Except at pedestrian tunnels or overhead crossings, motorists must yield right of way to pedestrians crossing any roadway within any marked crosswalk or unmarked crosswalk at the end of a block. Although "jaywalkers" do not have the right of way, motorists must exercise caution for their safety.

YEARLY OUTPUT OF SILVER GREAT IN NORTH LAND

Twenty Millions Per Annum Taken Out Of British Columbia Mines

From the virile pen of Sidney Norman appears the following article in the Vancouver Sun:

Remonetization of silver is coming as surely as tomorrow's sun will rise.

Advance of the United States domestic price of 77½ cents and a probable further advance, proves that the world has at last grasped the fact that the greatest monetary drama of modern history is swinging inevitably into its last acts.

Instead of a deluge of silver decending like an avalanche upon the United States, the vaults of nations have been slammed shut, and the world is now bidding frantically for a metal that has been handed over in the past to the United States at bargain prices.

Legislation under which the United States purchases are being made provides for metallic backing of currency in the ratio of $3 gold to $1 silver and purchases must be continued until that ratio is achieved, or world price is raised to $1.29 an ounce.

Events of the past few weeks have proved, beyond peradventure of reasonable doubt, that the limit will be reached long before the country's metallic backing can be raised to that ratio.

Total value of silver bullion held by the United States Treasury at the end of March, together with silver coins in vaults and in circulation, was $1,450,000,000.

Requirements to meet the set ratio, with gold stocks at that time of $8,599,000,000, totalled $2,866,000,000 in silver.

This means, that at that time, barring losses of gold, the treasury still had to buy $1,416,000,000 in silver, valuing the metal at the statuory price of $1.29 an ounce.

In terms of quantity, the U. S. had bought at that time 395,000,000 fine ounces of silver through purchases of newly-mined metal, nationalization of stocks as of August 9, 1934, and purchases in foregin markets.

This figure includes 111,900,000 ounces acquired through nationalization and 254,900,000 ounces bought in the open market under requirements of the silver purchase program.

Newly-mined silver acquired between December 21, 1933, and March 29, 1935, totalled 24,400,000 ounces while subsequent silver melted for recoinage accounted for 3,800,000 ounces.

At the end of March the U. S. treasury had 457,500,000 ounces of bullion, 62,500,000 ounces of which was on hand June 19, 1934, when the Silver Act was approved.

That is the picture in the United States, and it is a matter of transcending importance to Canada, third producer of silver among nations of the world.

Over a year ago The Vancouver Sun began urging the Canadian government to follow U. S. action, because it is absolutely certain that what happens in a monetary way in the Uuited States must also come to pass in Canada.

And since that time it has continued urging a Canadian silver policy.

Among all the provinces of Canada, British Columbia is more vitally interested in this question than any other.

Last year its production of silver reached close to 55 per cent of the total output of the Dominion, and under higher prices than have prevailed in past years, that percentage can be greatly increased.

Has Premier Pattullo taken heed of the opportunity presented by this epochal movement?

Not one word has he spoken.

Has the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett shown any signs of knowledge or appreciation of the great drama being enacted on the other side of the line?

He has most assuredly not.

Instead, the whole matter has been supercillously ignored and, worse than that, the nation's silver has been shovelled over the line at knock-down prices.

In other words, through the indifference or stupendously callous ignorance of Canadian officials a great increment has been handed on a silver platter to the United States.

It is axiomatic that goods—business—will never move normally again till monetary revaluation has been accomplished the world over.

Tokens of buying power must be provided in sufficient quantity to take care of the increased production and needs of the world and it must be easily reached by all.

What other medium of exchange—buying power—can compete with silver in acknowledged world value?

Assuredly, there is none.

Canada has frittered away the chance of a lifetime while 1,200,000 citizens corrode in idleness and the question of relief of decent men, women and children is batted around from pillar to post.

It is time a halt was called upon this shilly-shallying and a Canadian policy adopted that will put every able-bodied man to gainful work in development of natural resources.

The mineral industry of this Dominion already tops all others in monetary value by a wide margin, but with proper govermental encouragement and a real Canadian policy, its value could be doubled, trebled, quadrupled in a few years.

In British Columbia alone every unemployed man could be put to work tomorrow if we but cut the red tape that binds us and took full advantage of the great heritage ever vouchsafed to a people, the last great mineral empire of the white man.

Yet we prefer to glue ourselves to precedent, while thousands of hungry, useful citizens pace the streets.

The old order has gone forever.

We are well into a new era and there is no country on the face of this earth so favored—if we but had offical brains enough to utilize that which a bountiful Creator has given us.

For years the great silver-lead areas of this province have been deserted while men starved.

And yet, in West Kootenay District alone, 250 silver-lead mines have contributed to the wealth of this province and can be made to yield again.

The same is true of Portland Canal, Omineca and many other districts, and a vast unprospected empire lying towards the north.

We have whined over this depression long enough.

At the hands of Canadians is the wherewithal to sweep it into the unmourned past and restore to decency and virile manhood the thousands now on relief.

The local merchant can increase his business and keep purchases at home by advertising in The Record.

MOUNTAIN DRIVERS' TEN COMMANDMENTS

Driving in the mountains requires extra caution and motorists might well remember the following points:

Be courteous and thoughtful. A mountain road is no place for "flashy" driving.

Keep to the right—especially on blind curves. Use your horn; but above all, use your head.

Use second gear in descending steep grades. Never, under any circumstances, throw the car into neutral for coasting purposes. Such a practice is not only dangerous—it is unlawful.

Remember that loose gravel or sand is as dangerous a cause of skidding as is a wet pavement.

Remember that brakes do not function as perfectly on a washboard surface as they do on smooth pavement.

The power of development by your engine decreases as you gain altitude. If doubtful of your shifting ability, shift at the bottom of the grade.

Remember — Twenty-five miles in the mountains may be the equal of 100 miles on the level insofar as gas and oil mileage is concerned. Judge your supply accordingly.

Horse-drawn vehicles have the right of way at all times. The car ascending the grade has the right of way over one descending.

A steady pace allows one to cover greater mileage with less wear and tear to the car.

If you are not sure of your ability to drive in the mountains, don't tackle the job. Fear is the cause of the majority of mountain road accidents.

THREE SUPERB TALENTS JOIN IN NEWER PICTURE

"The Little Colonel" Boasts Foremost Child Character Actor And Dancer

Three supreme figures of screen, stage and vaudeville are brought together in Fox Films, "The Little Colonel," which comes to the Daly City Theater Friday and Saturday, May 31 and June 1.

They are Shirley Temple, Lionel Barrymore, and Bill Robinson.

Shirley Temple, the foremost child actress, can be counted among the miracles of movie history.

Co-starring with Shirley is Lionel Barrymore, easily the screen's leading character actor, one whose presence lends distinction to any role.

Bill Robinson of course has a niche for himself as the originator of the inimitable stair dance, which is the last word in tap dancing. The stairs on which he used to dance on the stage were inconsequential beside the two elaborate flights of fifteen and ten steps, on which he dances alone, and with Shirley.

"Little Colonel," from the pen of Annie Fellows Johnston, has been read in book form by millions. It is the tale of a Kentucky rebel who didn't know the Civil War was over. He banishes his daughter when she weds a Yankee. The disinherited daughter goes with her husband to the Indian frontier, where their daughter becomes the honorary colonel of a regiment.

Others in the cast of this De Sylva production are Evelyn Venable, John Lodge, and Sidney Blackmer. Part of the picture is filmed in glowing Technicolor.

"Car 99," with Fred McMurry, will be shown also.

Mrs. William Boyle of Vacaville is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Boyle of Winchester street. She came here to attend her grandson's graduation from Crocker School, held in the Jefferson Union High School Auditorium on Wednesday of this week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wettstein of Brunswick street, Grand Regent of Court St. Mary, Catholic Daughters of America, and Mrs. Margaret Fields of Risel street, Past Grand Regent, returned, Sunday evening; from the state convention held in Yosemite Valley last week.
